

TEAM CHARTER

Team G29 The Northstar Sprint

This is a group guide and instructions that can be followed during the entire period and it isn't about being strict, it's about making sure everyone feels and gets involved, supported, and heard, so we can deliver our best work together.

1. Communication

We'll use WhatsApp as our main channel for day-to-day updates and questions. If you're stuck, busy, or need help, just say so no one's expected to figure everything out alone. Expected response time: within 6 hours during the day. If you know you'll be offline longer than that, give the team a heads-up in advance.

2. Deadlines & Check-ins

We'll do a quick daily check-in at 8.00 p.m, just a short update on what you did, what you're doing next, and anything blocking you. If you're going to miss a task deadline, tell the team before it's due, not after, so we can adjust together.

3. Everyone Contributes

We all have different strengths, so let's make sure tasks are spread out fairly and everyone gets a meaningful piece of the work. This will also keep our contribution log balanced, which is part of what's graded.

4. Own Our Tasks

Once you take a task, you own moving it forward and keeping the board updated on it. If you're stuck, flag it early rather than sitting on it quietly.

5. Keep the Board Updated The Same Day

Move your task's status the same day you work on it, not in a batch at the end of the week. This is what makes our audit trail honest and trustworthy.

6. Help Each Other

If someone's struggling or falling behind, we support them rather than leaving them to figure it out alone, that's what teammates are for.

7. Conflict Resolution

If two of us disagree on an approach, we'll talk it out directly first. If we can't agree within a reasonable time, we bring it to the full team to vote or decide together, and we move forward as one team once a decision is made with no lingering side-tension.

8. Escalation Path

If a teammate shows zero activity or goes silent for 2+ days, here's what we do:

- Day 1 of silence: a teammate reaches out directly to check in.
- Day 2 of silence: if still no response, we flag it in the group chat and reassign their task if the deadline is at risk.
- If it continues, we raise it with the instructor rather than let it affect the whole team's grade.

9. Quality Over Rushing

Let's review and test each other's work before it's final, so what we submit is something we're all proud of.

10. No Silly Questions

Ask early rather than struggle silently. That's better for you and for the team's timeline.

11. Let's Enjoy the Process

Five days, five people, different skills let's use everyone's strengths and have each other's backs.
